It Duce Announces French-Italy Pact To Be Signed

DEFENSE OF AUSTRIA IS TO CONTINUE

Significant Agreement to Be Signed Before End Of October, He Asserts
ONLY TWO POLICIES

Tells 200,000 Persons That Either Friendship or Hostility Only Way Out

MILAN, Italy, Oct. 6.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini announced to a cheering crowd in Cathedral square today that a Franco-Italian agreement—considered one of the most significant accords in recent years—would be signed at the end of October.

Announcement by the Fascist premier, who stood alone on a 30-foot tribune before a crowd of 200,000 in the square and side streets, confirmed United Press dispatches of last week forecasting the accord between the two nations.

"With our nearest neighbors we can have but two policies: Either friendship or hostility," Mussolini said.

"Looking eastward, it is evident that there is no great possibility of development if our neighbor insists on publishing newspaper polemics about a subject which hurts us to the very depth of our flesh."

Mussolini obviously referred to Yugoslavian belligerence of the Italian army.

The premier continued: "The first condition is that our relations with other peoples emerge from the diplomatic refrigerator and penetrate the very heart of the people."

"Yesterday we defended the independence of Austria, and we will continue to defend it."

"European development is impossible without Germany, but it is necessary that some trends in Germany's policies be changed. Germany cannot be estranged from the course of European history."

"We are convinced that civilization will be the type of civilization for the next century," he said. "True peace, if it should come accompanied by justice, would induce us to decorate our rifles with olive branches."

"If it should not come with justice, we men of Fascism—men tempered by action—will decorate our bayonets with laurels of victory."

MOONEY TO RESUME LABOR ACTIVITIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—(UP)—Tom Mooney, former union leader serving a life sentence in the fatal Preparedness day bombings, is preparing to resume an active part in the labor movement, delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention said today.

The delegates visited Mooney at San Quentin prison and found him counting heavily on the election of Upton Sinclair, Democratic gubernatorial candidate whose platform promises a pardon for the world-famed prisoner.

The visitors were refused permission to talk to J. J. McNamara, another former labor worker serving a life term for the bombing of the Los Angeles Times building.

DEATH TOLL IN SPAIN REVOLT GROWS HOURLY

Rebels Take Offensive in Northern Part of Nation During Night

(Copyright 1934 by United Press)
MADRID, Oct. 6.—(UP)—Rebels took the offensive in northern Spain today in a fight to establish a socialist republic. It was unofficially estimated that between 115 and 125 had been killed and more than 400 wounded.

It was officially estimated that several thousand socialists were under arrest, including more than 500 here.

There had been revolutionary violence in more than 40 towns. In some of them the rebels had the upper hand, and infantry and artillery moved northward into Asturias province, the chief battle ground, to the aid of beleaguered police, civil guards and storm guards.

The cruiser Libertad was ordered from Vigo to Bilbao, seaport nearest the Asturias zone, and the Almirante Cervera and Miguel Cervantes were ordered from the same port to Cartagena. All the cruisers summoned their men aboard urgently by means of sirens and signal flags.

Soldiers appeared here today as guards on street cars and a general troop mobilization was believed possible.

The combined socialist, communist and syndicalist forces, believing their political lives at stake because of the formation of an allegedly fascist government, held together a "red labor front."

At Mieres, in Asturias, rebels overran the town. The government forces were barricaded in the civil guard barracks, firing through the windows at the besiegers while wives, mothers and sisters loaded their rifles. Strategy of Francisco Largo Caballero, left wing general, was shown by reports outside the Asturias area.

At Oviedo, in Asturias, the chief town of the worst trouble area, authorities in a public manifesto called the movement only a violent squall of criminal insanity, almost exclusively limited to the mining districts, and predicted that the revolt would be smashed soon.

Madrid was comparatively calm but authorities were alert. Food was scarce because communication was crippled.

NEW JERSEY WILL INDICT HAUPTMANN

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(UP)—New Jersey officials prepared to seek indictment next week of Bruno R. Hauptmann while the Lindbergh case suspect visited today with his wife.

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann was permitted to see the prisoner for the first time in recent days when he was taken to the office of Bronx county District Attorney Samuel Foley.

The New Jersey case against Hauptmann, charging him with murder of the Lindbergh baby, appeared to be almost complete and an indictment probably will be sought next Monday.

HAUPTMANN IDENTIFIED

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 6.—(UP)—Positive identification of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, suspect in the Lindbergh kidnapping as a man seen near the Hopewell estate of the Lindberghs was announced today by Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf. Willard Whitehead made the identification. Schwarzkopf said.

Grand Jury Orders Trio Be Arrested

Mrs. Helen Werner and Joseph Weinblatt, Politician, Also Accused

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—(UP)—Local political and judicial circles were rocked today by the federal grand jury which returned indictments, charging Gavriel W. Craig, associate justice of the second district court of appeals and two others with conspiracy to bribe government prosecutors in the Italo Petroleum corporation mail fraud case.

Mrs. Helen M. Werner, long established as "Queen Helen" of Los Angeles city politics, and Joseph Weinblatt, a politician, were named co-defendants with Justice Craig.

The trio were accused of conspiring to "fix" by bribe, William D. Mitchell, then United States attorney general, and Samuel W. McNabb, then U. S. attorney for the southern district of California, as a prelude to dismissal of mail fraud charges against Italo Petroleum defendants.

Payment was to have been made, the indictments charged, from a $50,000 fund to be furnished by John McKeon, former Italo official and other persons involved in the case. Thirteen overt acts were charged.

The true bill fixed the bail of each of the accused at $10,000.

Denying the charge, Justice Craig charged that "politics" lay behind the indictments.

The three defendants were expected to surrender Monday and arrange bail.

Weinblatt was accused of acting as intermediary in the alleged negotiations. Among the 13 overt acts charged was that early in 1932, he accepted a $25,000 promissory note from McKeon. The note, it was charged, had been executed and signed by the Italo Petroleum corporation and made payable to McKeon.

The indictments described conferences at which McKeon and Justice Craig were accused of discussing ways and means of carrying out the conspiracy. McKeon was further charged with attending a meeting at the Stewart hotel in San Francisco at which he discussed possible ways of raising money.

Craig and Mrs. Werner were accused of consulting Clay Carpenter, Italo receiver, regarding the payment of certain notes. Carpenter, who was called before the grand jury, said upon leaving the jury room that he considered himself a government witness.

The indictments charged that the three defendants worked toward influencing government inaction for McKeon and others involved in the Italo fiasco.

Alleged Bribery

"In accordance with the plot on the part of the conspirators to influence said persons (Mitchell and McNabb) to do acts in violation of their lawful duties," the indictments read, "they promised

IMPEACH GOV. MERRIAM, SAYS RAY L. HAIGHT

Progressive Candidate in Radio Speech Attacks Chief Executive

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—(UP)—Gov. Frank F. Merriam "should be impeached, not just defeated," Haight, progressive candidate for governor, said last night in a radio address.

Repeating earlier charges that Gov. Merriam profited by more than $30,000 by his action in calling out the state militia in the San Francisco general strike, Haight declared that he "would withdraw from the campaign if I thought Merriam fit to be governor."

Haight's address, in part, followed: "My challenge to Merriam has been that his public record shows him unfit to be governor. I dared Merriam to deny that sums in excess of $30,000 were paid into his campaign funds by those interested in the shipping business upon his calling out the militia in San Francisco."

"I said then and I say now that Merriam had the right to exercise his judgment on that order but neither he nor his supporters had any right to profit financially by the transaction."

"Do you think it safe for the commonwealth in these days of unrest to have a governor who looks with favor upon his supporters—profiting financially from any order calling out machine guns? Or don't you believe as I do, that at a time when civil war threatened in the state the greatest duty Merriam owned the people was to keep himself clear of obligation to those who were violently partisan in that controversy."

Impeach Merriam

"I say that a governor who lends himself to such practices should be impeached and not just defeated for election."

"Wholesale reduction of salaries is no panacea for the evils which we face today. What we need is more buying power not less. That is why in my program I declared myself as unalterably opposed to such a course of action."

"Tax reductions should come about through the elimination of overlapping and duplicating functions. If a public employee is not worthy of his hire remove him; if there is a job for him to do and he is doing it, then he should be amply paid and know that he is secure in his position."

"Other groups that have everything to fear from the election of Merriam are the small independent merchants in California."

"The unfair practices of certain monopolistic institutions in this state have all but destroyed the small merchant. An example is the million dollar merchandising found allowed the Pacific Gas and Electric by the Railroad Commission to enable the P. G. and E. to sell household appliances in competition with the small merchant."

The Trojan frosh scored in the second quarter, when Sloan, quarterback, plunged over from the 1 yard line. The ball was punted 50 yards to the Santa Ana 25-yard line. The ball was taken over from there in a series of line plunges. Stranks kicked the goal.

POSSE SLAYS CHICO JEWELER AFTER CHASE

Drink-Crazed Business Man Kills Highway Officer and Garageman

CHICO, Cal., Oct. 6.—(UP)—A posse shot and killed Nick Turchinatz, 38, Chico jeweler in the foothills today a few hours after Turchinatz, drink-crazed, allegedly had slain a state highway patrolman and a Chico garage man.

Comrades of the slain highway officer, William McDaniel, 35, led the posse which formed here soon after the bodies of McDaniel and Kenneth Davis, 29, garage man, were found near the jeweler's wrecked automobile on the Cemetery road half a mile south of Chico.

The chase led into the foothills, where the possemen surrounded the suspect. Turchinatz opened fire on the pursuers, and they answered his challenge with a fusillade.

The lone man in the underbrush did not reply. The state highway patrolman in the searching party crept forward cautiously and saw the quarry stretched out on a ground. He was dead, killed by a bullet through the back.

Sheriff C. W. Toland and Capt. Grover Mitchell of the state patrol, leaders of the posse, took charge of the body.

At the morgue to which Turchinatz's body was taken here, the autopsy also showed a bullet wound in the leg, apparently inflicted when Marshall and Davis were killed.

They had gone to the Cemetery road when an automobile wreck was reported. A few minutes after their departure, shots were heard. Police, rushing to the scene, found both men dead. Marshall still clutched his service revolver, from which two shots had been fired.

The search for Turchinatz started at his home, where the posse found a bloody shirt.

Police reports showed that Turchinatz had been reported driving an automobile while intoxicated before the tragedy.

He is survived by his widow and one child. Marshall, who made his home here, left a widow and several children. Davis also was married and left his widow and a three-year-old child.

GREEN ORDERS OUSTED UNIONS BE RESTORED

Delegates to Labor Convention Take Adjournment Until Monday

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—(UP)—After smoldering for days in secret conferences, the industrial schism in the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor came out into the open today in hearings before the committee on adjustments at the annual convention of the organization.

While many of the delegates were plienicking and the convention was taking the first of a two day recess, the committee sought a new solution to the restoration of the present administration of the building trades to readmit three unions frankly anxious to elect new officers in the department.

Overshadowing for the time the coming contests on enlargement of the executive council and on the departmental dispute reached the committee through a report of the federation executive council which President William Green made on the convention floor yesterday.

Almost belligerently Green announced that the council had decreed that the ousted unions—the carpenters, the electricians, and the bricklayers—be restored immediately to membership in the department which they left following a factional dispute several years ago.

The convention the department held last week was illegal because the delegates of the three unions had not been admitted, the report said. The election of officers held by that convention also was illegal according to the same authority. A new vote must be taken, and a new convention must be held at Washington, D. C., within 45 days after the present federal convention comes to an end, unless the building trades group accepts the council's verdict.

Appeals Decision

Immediately after Green had finished reading, Michael J. McDonough, who was elected president of the department last week for three years, leaped to his feet and announced that he was appealing the council decision.

The first serious floor debate of the week impended, where a few hours before Madame Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, had urged cooperation, peace and patience on the labor host.

But Green was equal to the situation, and he countered McDonough's appeal by referring both the report and the protest to the committee on adjustment. But a floor fight seems inevitable as the committee must report to the convention when the sessions resume on Monday.

Involved in the most bitter internal dispute within the federation, one that may produce an open break, are the unions having approximately 800,000 members, about

SCORE STANDS 2 EACH

Greenberg Gets Four Hits; Cardinals Used Five Pitchers in Succession

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—(UP)—The Detroit Tigers went on a batting spree today and defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 10 to 4, in the fourth game of the world series. The victory deadlocked the series at two games each and made it certain that the final game of the classic will be played in Detroit.

The Tigers' pitcher was Eldon Auker, who had never before taken part in world series warfare. Although found for ten hits, he kept them well scattered and the epidemic of base hits off Tiger batters gave him his victory.

The Cardinals used a procession of pitchers, leading of which was the one who was removed in the third and following with Dazzy Vance, Bill Walker, Jess Haines and Jim Mooney.

Dizzy Dean, ace of the St. Louis Cardinals' pitching staff, suffered "a slight concussion" when hit in the right temple by a thrown ball in the fourth inning of the fourth world series game with Detroit today.

Dr. Robert Hyland, the club physician, announced the extent of the injury after an examination of Dean in the Cardinals' dressing room immediately after the incident occurred. Dean recovered quickly, smoked a cigarette, and appeared little the worse for the experience.

As a precaution, however, Dr. Hyland said he probably would send Dean to a hospital for an X-ray examination later in the day. Dr. Hyland could not say whether Dean would be able to pitch any more in the series.

PARIS DISPATCHES BRANDED AS UNTRUE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(UP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today branded as "wild," "reckless," and "unfounded" dispatches from Paris of the "Havas News agency" that the United States had refused to participate in a League of Nations movement to end the South American Chaco war.

This dispatches of which Hull complained were sent from Paris and were, he said, widely published in Brazil. They were alleged to have attributed statements to Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles that the league movement constituted an infringement of the Monroe doctrine.

This was the end of the kicking for the game, although Santa Ana was a threat in the final quarter. Harnois, Santa Ana quarterback, intercepted a U. S. C. pass in this quarter, running the ball to the S. A. J. C. 47. Anderson, J. C. fullback, ran right end from there 25 yards to the Trojans 25-yard line. The Santa Ana threat ended a few plays later, when a Santa Ana pass was intercepted on the S. C. 10-yard line. The same ended a few plays later.

S. A. Churches To Honor Sunday School Teachers

CITY TO JOIN IN NATIONAL RECOGNITION

National recognition comes tomorrow to the faithful Sunday school teacher, and Santa Ana churches will universally join in observation of an event honoring all Bible school instructors.

Special recognition day services are scheduled in nearly all local churches, it was stated by the Rev. W. S. Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church, who is president of the Santa Ana Ministerial association.

The Ministerial association held a meeting yesterday to discuss plans for recognition day, but decided not to participate in a unified observation program. Each church will carry out its individual plans, the meeting decided.

Rally day services and national recognition day exercises will be combined in many churches. Some of the churches will confine their services to the Bible schools, others will recognize the occasion at all services. Special sermons have been prepared by a number of the pastors.

"Some Teachers I Have Known" will be the sermon subject of the Rev. Harry E. Ewings of the First Baptist church. "This Is My Task" will be the topic of the Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. "Youth and Its Problems" will be the subject of a symposium conducted by four young men at the United Presbyterian church Sunday evening. The Young Men's Bible class having charge of the service.

Spurgeon Memorial church will conduct morning and evening rally services, with special programs. A rally day march is set for 10:30 a. m. from the educational building to the church auditorium. At the evening service, in addition to the pastor's sermon, Justice K. E. Morrison will deliver a talk on "The Benefits of Sunday School to the Problem Boys."

The SERA band will play before the Men's Community Bible class in the Christian church at 9 a. m.

evenly divided between the group supporting the department administration and the three unions seeking reinstatement, the carpenters, the bricklayers and the electricians.

The present convention is the third round of the fight John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, is making to enlarge the executive council. The council at present has 11 members, three ex-officio, Lewis' present plan—resolution No.

1 on the convention calendar—ship to 25 three ex-officio. Win Victory. Proposes to increase the membership. Advocates of the extension of industrial unions under the wing of the A. F. of L. won the initial skirmish of the second big controversy of the convention when the first resolution to come from committee was accepted yesterday. It provided for organization of migratory agricultural workers into A. F. of L. units of the industrial type plan. But the proposal appeared emasculated when various sections of the plan were referred to several different committees "for consideration."

A compromise appeared likely in the struggle between advocates of the industrial type union—among them the powerful Lewis—to extend federation organization in this field, particularly to automobile plants, and other mass production industries, and the group supporting retention of the present dominance of the craft type unions. The federation was founded on the craft type union and the late Samuel Gompers, for decades the federation president, made that form as traditional with the A. F. of L. as he did with the conservatism with which he guided the unions.

Madame Perkins' long awaited address brought the labor men assurances that the Roosevelt administration never has contemplated making arbitration compulsory labor disputes and that President Roosevelt did not mean to have his plea for industrial peace interpreted as meaning compulsory arbitration. She promised that unemployment insurance and old age pensions would form part of the social security program now being formed by the New Dealers at Washington. The promise struck a responsive chord among the labor delegates whose leadership has pledged to fight for both forms of security as well as for the 30-hour work week.

SMEDLEY SPEAKING CLASS CHANGES DATE

The Y. M. C. A. class in public speaking which was organized last Tuesday evening will start for its second session on Monday evening at 7:30, and will continue to meet thereafter on Mondays, it was announced today by R. C. Smedley, the instructor. The change has been made to accommodate the convenience of the members, and to make it possible for others to join. New entrants will be welcomed Monday night, said Smedley, but not thereafter. The class is open to both men and women.

to bring about dismissal of said prosecutions without any further reason for doing so than the receipt of said sums of money."

Mrs. Werner is the wife of Edwin F. Werner, who at the time was city attorney of Los Angeles. Ten persons were sent to prison or fined in the Italo case. Sixteen, all prominent in Los Angeles and San Francisco business circles, were named in original indictments, but charges against two were dismissed on grounds they were not involved in secret profits allegedly paid out by the firm's operators, and four others were acquitted.

McKeon was convicted as was A. G. Wilkes of San Francisco and both were given prison sentences. The defendants were accused of saddling heavy losses on investors through a system of "secret profits" and with misrepresenting, in letters to prospective bidders, details of the purchase of the Brown-Moore Oil company and the McKeon Drilling company. McKeon was president of the latter enterprise.

Justice Craig is widely known as a jurist, lecturer and author. After serving under District Attorney John D. Fredericks, he was elected to the superior bench in 1911 and in 1920 he ascended to the appellate bench. He is an established authority on water rights, having written several books on the subject.

Mrs. Werner is a power in city politics and prominent in civic activities.

INJUNCTION ON WATER USE IS GRANTED TODAY

Superior Judge H. G. Ames today issued a temporary restraining order halting pumping operations at the Westminster club in which water was being pumped from the Santa Ana river basin for flooding duck ponds of the gun club.

The injunction was to be in force pending a hearing set for October 15.

The court's action followed filing of the petition by the district attorney's office to test the right of gun clubs to pump water for duck ponds. Those against whom the order was directed are the Westminster Land and Water company and club officials, including President Stephen W. Royce, Pasadena; Dr. W. H. Olds, Los Angeles, secretary; and S. M. Farmer, keeper.

The complaint cites that the defendant club is pumping water from the Santa Ana basin, in which there is a scarcity of water, and asks that the pumping be stopped.

Meanwhile, seven gun club keepers arrested during the last two days on charges of wasting water, in violation of a county ordinance, were at liberty on their own recognizance. Dates for their hearings in Huntington Beach justice court have not yet been set.

EARLY CALIFORNIA DAYS PLAY SETTING

CLAREMONT, Oct. 6.—Take all the vitality of the early West, all the character that brought San Francisco through storm and strife, all the fastness of early California days, put them into play form, and you have "Miner's Gold," now playing at the Little Theatre in Padua Hills.

Rita Newport and Owen King, as the couple whose lives span the entire play, build solidly the two characters upon which the action revolves. They are ably supported by a company of forty.

"Miner's Gold" will complete its run of two weeks on Friday, October 12, with performances given from Monday through Friday with a matinee on Wednesday. Special student rates are now in effect at the Little Theatre in Padua Hills.

To an excellent opening night audience on Saturday, the 29th, the Mexican Players of Padua Hills confirmed all reports of their versatility, and in so doing launched a very successful new play entitled "Mamachita."

"Mamachita" will continue at the Little Theatre in Padua Hills each Saturday, matinee and evening, during October and November.

Owen singled to right, scoring Rogell and Greenberg going to third. Fox struck out. Owen stole second and Greenberg came home on the play for Owen at second. Owen then continued to second. Frisch tried for his throw was wild. It was ruled as an error for Delaney. Greenberg was also credited with a stolen base. Auker fanned.

16 PRISONERS LEAVE COUNTY BASTILE HERE

Sixteen prisoners left the Orange County jail yesterday, but their destination was not home. Two were deported to Mexico, and 14 were taken to the Federal prison at McNeil's Island in San Francisco Bay.

Jose Sanchez and Fibuco Estrada were taken in charge by immigration officers for deportation, after their recent conviction in Federal court at Los Angeles of being in this country illegally. Fourteen other Federal prisoners, convicted on various charges in the U. S. courts at Los Angeles, were taken by bus to McNeil's Island in charge of a party of U. S. Deputy Marshals.

Morris Corsentino and his brother, Ignace Corsentino, will have three and two years respectively to regret their bootlegging activities. They were convicted before U. S. Judge Cosgrave of being members of a gang which operated a camouflaged still hidden in Box canyon. They were convicted of being in possession of an unregistered distillery and of huge amounts of bootleg liquor on which no Federal taxes were paid.

Others in the prisoner party, and the charges upon which they were convicted, were as follows: George E. Farmer, bank act; Hermenegildo Jasso, Lazaro Trejo, Saturnino Villegas, Rafael Rodriguez, immigration act; William Thompson, Dyer act; Edward Metz, mail fraud; Max Weber, Dyer act; John Arvidson, Roy Erickson, Harrison narcotic act; and C. C. Rolfe, mail fraud.

petition with the independent merchant. Ask any independent druggist or grocer about his problem. Yet what can they hope for in the election of either Merriam or Sinclair. "Vote for Merriam," signs hang from all the P. G. and E. wires. McAdoo, the present fair god-father to Mr. Sinclair, as a lawyer represents some of these monopolistic institutions. In my program, I declared myself against those unfair practices. The only hope of the independent merchants of California lies in their maintaining the full vigor of their campaign in behalf of my election.

Threaten Workers

"Many of these great corporations who are seeking to return their man Friday to the Governor's chair are doing so by threatening their employees with dire consequences and loss of jobs if they don't vote for Merriam. I hope you wage earners employed by them are not letting them kid you.

"Listen—The Standard Oil Company is not going to move Ketchikan to China. The Southern Pacific isn't going to move its tracks to Mexico. The P. G. and E. will still be doing business at the same old stand. What is more, your job will still need to be done. These corporations will set the same treatment from me as Governor of California that John Doe will get—no more and no less—but the first time they start a lobby at Sacramento I'll get on the radio and cause an explosion that will be heard from Bureka to San Diego.

"In my next broadcast I am going to tell the business men exactly why Merriam cannot beat Sinclair and why I can. I am going to tell why a certain large insurance company in Los Angeles must have a governor it can control and why it is attacking me by every means within its power. I will tell the University of California Alumni the real reason Preston Hottel wants Merriam elected. And not to overlook the fact that Sam Haskins, another letter-writer to the Golden Bears is the arch-lobbyist of the railroads.

"I shall tell why I am urging support of the Townsend plan. Why a national plan of social insurance—old age pensions must be developed.

"The future of all California is at stake in this campaign. It is not just another election year—it's our last chance to bring about a rebirth of political integrity without political collapse. It's our last chance to bring about sane constructive changes in our government. I went into this fight on these principles and if there is only one candidate running in November, I shall be that candidate. Shout to the world I am here to the finish and I am in to win.

"A great future can come to America. Democracy can be saved. Liberty and constitutional processes can continue to be ours."

revolt, was becoming more effective generally and new "reinforcement" of workers were being called out.

Foreign Minister Ricardo Samper said that no reports had been received of danger to foreigners or foreign property. American Ambassador Claude G. Bowers said he had received no reports of Americans being in difficulty.

Planned expulsion of three Americans held as communists was postponed because police were busy on revolt duty. The Americans deny they are communists. They were arrested at Afanquez and brought here. They are Adolf Levy, the Bronx, New York City, and Julius Lawentman and his wife Leah, also of New York.

"The greatest drama in social and economic change of any period in the world's history is in progress in China at the present time," declared Dr. Arthur Coons, dean of Occidental college at a meeting of missionary societies affiliated with the Los Angeles Presbyterian held at the Orange Presbyterian church yesterday with Mrs. R. E. Carswell of Santa Ana presiding. Dr. Coons spoke of the subject, "The Economic Reconstruction of China and the Missionary Movement."

Dr. Coons who recently returned from a three months' sojourn in China where he traveled extensively said that it is difficult to generalize about a country which has as many climatic changes as are found from the Bahama Islands to Hudson Bay, an area four times as large as that of the United States and which has a population which is one-fourth that of the entire world.

"Economic reconstruction must come," said Dr. Coons, "in a reduction of the annual increase of population which is 4,000,000 a year, with an emphasis on the quality of human life rather than on the quantity and which may be brought about by postponed marriages and when some effective method of birth control is established. Other important factors, he named as more complete exploitation of natural resources and the increase of food supplies.

"With great rivers of water at its disposal for irrigation purposes in portions of the country where there is light rainfall, China lacks government capable of carrying through a broad effective program of reconstruction," Dr. Coons stated. Eighty per cent of the people are engaged in agriculture, 51 per cent of the land of the country arable with but 26 per cent under cultivation.

"China's masses need a gospel the principle of which calls for the sacrifices of the strong for the weak. I believe that the religion of Jesus should be taught as it came down to us, with its justice and economic fairness. China is a country where the 'squeeze' is ever present.

"Missionary work in China was established there about 100 years ago and that at present there are 4,000,000 Christianized Chinese, the same number as the annual increase in population. Christian workers are teaching better methods of agriculture, co-operative marketing and are aiding debt-ridden farmers by the establishment of co-operative credit agencies. Many Chinese farmers are carrying debts which have been in existence for hundreds of years and which they have inherited. Interest of 24 to 60 per cent is paid," said Dr. Coons.

The Orange Missionary society presented a stewardship play with the leading role played by Mrs. R. W. Jones and directed by Mrs. Judith Payne. Miss Mary Moore, representing the Board of Foreign Missions in New York, made a brief talk. Mrs. Carl Plister of Orange sang two solos accompanied by Mrs. Margaret Ockles. Officials present included Mrs. Margery Schuberth, president; Mrs. W. E. Willets, foreign correspondent; Mrs. E. H. Yoder, treasurer of Los Angeles and two vice presidents, Mrs. C. D. Hoag and Mrs. J. S. Gordon of Los Angeles. It was announced that Miss Grace Rowley who has been in China for a number of years will return from that country to her home in Santa Ana next week. Two hundred delegates were registered.

COMEDY HELD OVER ON PASADENA STAGE

PASADENA, Oct. 6.—An exceptional popular hit scored by the current farce-comedy, "By Candle-Light," has extended its run at the Pasadena Playhouse into the third week beginning next Monday, October 8. This European play with the stars, Reginald Sharland (the "Honorable Archie" of radio fame) and Irene Biller, sparkling European comedienne, has proven the most popular engagement of the year.

The new comedy of American home life, "Nobody Much," featuring Buster Crabbe of screen fame and Alan Bridge, deferred for next Tuesday will be announced until later in the month.

"The Brothers Karamazov," Dostoevsky's classic novel, will open on the scheduled date, October 16. Performances of this play will begin at 1:30 (Saturday matinee) and 7:45 p. m., because of its somewhat greater length than the usual play.

SWEETHEART SLAYER IS FOUND GUILTY

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 6.—(UP)—A jury of miners today condemned Robert A. Edwards to death, for murdering a sweetheart so that he would be free to marry another.

The verdict completed the parallel between the tragedy of Harvey's Lake where Freda McKee, expectant mother of Edwards' child, was blackjacked to death, and the Driesser novel, "An American Tragedy."

CHURCH GROUP MEETS

GARDEN GROVE, Oct. 6.—Several members of the Methodist Episcopal church gathered at the home of Mrs. E. R. Schneider one day this week for the purpose of working on uniforms for Miss Agnes Dunn, who is leaving shortly for India, where she will take up her duties as missionary nurse. A pot luck luncheon was served at noon.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

-- News Behind the News --

WASHINGTON

By George Durne

Uncle Sam is just about ready to put a finger on Kingfish Huey Long, ex-Fuehrer of Louisiana, alleging income tax evasion.

The amount involved will total several hundred thousand dollars, spread over a number of years. Agents have been working diligently for many months. The case should be completed and ready for presentation before Congress convenes.

That the Bureau of Internal Revenue has been after Long has been reported often. Investigators first began probing the bombastic Senator's receipts and expenditures back in the closing days of the Hoover administration. There were many rumors at the time that suit would be filed against him but they came to naught. Many observers speculated that action had been withheld because it would be construed as political persecution. The Kingfish allowed as much on several occasions after the first rumors broke.

But with the change of administration to his own party, the investigation of Long's personal financial affairs instead of being shelved was pressed with renewed vigor.

Undercover men have spent tedious months following elusive trails. Their progress, though, has been steady. It is reported that their work is about at an end.

Determination of Long's actual income during recent years has been approached in two ways. One, of course, is the direct method of ascertaining all possible tangible assets and receipts through examination of bank and other records.

The other is that which was applied successfully in tripping up Al Capone. This involves locating cash expenditures made by the person suspected of tax evasion, tracing them directly back and totaling the amount paid out in the course of each year. When an individual deals largely in cash this necessitates painstaking research—but it has been proved it can be done.

As evidence that the New Dealers are entirely non-partisan in their prying into personal accounts, it is reported on good authority that former Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, who was Republican leader in the last administration, also is having his troubles with the tax collecting unit.

The amount involved is said to be much less than in Huey's case—under $50,000. The period of time also is much shorter.

Those who should know say Watson's case is being handled differently from Long's.

ALLIES

The New Deal's attitude toward the Progressive who supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and who are now up for reelection on their own account is definitely crystallized.

FDR already has given the accolade and personally appointed Senators H. Johnson of California and Bob La Follette of Wisconsin. These two were taken into camp some time ago.

With Senator Henrik Shipstead, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, the administration played both ends to the middle. When the President went through the state in August, he gave rides to both Shipstead and Einar Holmde, the Democratic candidate, on his train—but only Shipstead, said Mr. Roosevelt. Then, later, Jim Farley went into Minnesota and endorsed Holmde. It's just a question of which gesture is worth the most and Shipstead is expected to win hands down.

That leaves Senator Bronson Cutting, the Progressive Republican from New Mexico who was a Groton classmate of the President's. The Democrats were a bit worried about his case but finally have decided to leave him to the wolves. His agitation for the bonus last session made matters easier.

Running against Cutting is Rep. Dennis Chavez, Democrat, who won his seat two years ago by 42,000 votes—the largest majority ever given a candidate in New Mexico. Chavez, once a clerk in the office of the Secretary of the Senate, speaks Spanish fluently, which is an important item in his state.

Helm O. Bursan, former conservative Republican Senator from New Mexico, is supporting Chavez. Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Smith is reported leaning in his direction. (Insiders say Mark Hanna's daughter would like to see her present husband get a shot at the Senate two years from now.)

Cutting is wealthy and has powerful newspaper support but some of the knowing at Washington headquarters think the former Senator clerk has a good chance to take his seat on January 1.

TAXES

Politicians are talking again of inflation. Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee are right up against the necessity of raising tax rates. The House Committee can't bind the Senate, but it's going ahead with a tax bill just the same.

Experts of the House and Senate Appropriation Committee have figured out how much Congress authorized at the last session. It amounts to $8,666,000,000. That staggers Democrats and Republicans alike.

Democrats admit privately to their Republican colleagues that "this thing can't go on."

AUTHOR

Secretary of Interior Ickes has become full of that virus which all budding authors feel about the time their first opus comes off the press.

The Cabinet officer's book, "The New Democracy," as first related in this column, will be out the end of this month. It is his answer to Herbert Hoover's "The Challenge to Liberty."

Ickes has confided to friends that if this book takes he may try two others. One would deal with the oil problem, and as he is an authority on "hot oil" it might make warm reading. The other would be devoted to Public Works.

REVIVAL

Washington hears that Colonel Thomas W. Miller, who once served the Republican party too well but not wisely and got into trouble over campaign contributions, has established himself permanently in Nevada and gone somewhat New Dealerish.

Miller and Representative James G. Scrugham, Democrat, of Reno, are associated in various enterprises, and Miller is reported to be backing Senator Key Pittman, administration spokesman, for reelection.

The former Allen Property Custodian under President Harding is identified with the Civilian Conservation Corps camps in Nevada.

NOTES

"The President calls for peace while the A. F. L. at San Francisco declares war," said a business executive. . . . September recorded 17 1/2 inches of rain in Washington and automobile fatalities also broke all records. . . .

Critics say that FDR disappointed Ray Moley when he didn't back up Moley's private assurances to big business—that it needn't worry. The relief administration's transient camps are overflowing—a new Civil Works Administration in some form must be set up. . . .

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration and the Veterans Administration are figuring on subsistence homesteads for unemployed veterans. . . . Controller of the Currency J. P. T. O'Connor and Secretary Morgenthau are playing a cozy game of opposition. . . . O'Connor expects to resign because he isn't left out of the reorganization activities.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

The conference of the gold bloc countries in Brussels October 20 is worth watching. It's likely to change the world monetary picture overnight.

New York experts predict that the conference will restrict the movements of gold to the frontiers of the gold bloc and declare a gold embargo so far as the rest of the world is concerned. Probably such action will be accomplished by "high-falutin'" declarations of adherence to the gold standard—but that would be for domestic consumption only to maintain political stability. The gold bloc currencies would assuredly hit the skids just as the dollar did when we declared an embargo in March of '33.

There is evidence that financial observers abroad know what's coming off. The recent weakness of the franc indicates that timid French capital is taking no chances on being trapped and is transferring into sterling as a precautionary measure. The move would hit the London gold market in the scarlet plexus. The informed say that the recent weakness of gold shares—in the face of high prices for the metal—is no mere coincidence.

The temporary chaos that might follow the embargo would probably hasten a world monetary agreement on a new basis of relative values. It would then not be to England's advantage to block it as she could no longer profit by dealing in gold as a commodity. From our angle we might obtain the benefits of inflation without its risks. Some New York sharpshooters forecast a lively boom in securities and commodities in consequence.

NRA

The more big business thinks about the President's projected revision of NRA the less it likes it. Comment runs that industry will be asked to chuck its gains out the window while labor maintains the advantages it has won.

Industry's original quid pro quo for concessions on collective bargaining, higher wages and shorter hours was the privilege of making price-fixing agreements with implied suspension of the anti-trust laws. Now price fixing is headed for the ash pile—but not so with labor's end of the bargain. Some of the boys believe they're being played for suckers.

If price-fixing is officially tabooed you can expect to see some price wars as are wars. How to prevent a revival of cut-throat competition from deflating power will be one of the new NRA's thorniest problems.

New York bankers managed a wry grin at the Federal Reserve Board's spanking of its Advisory Council for holding in on monetary problems. The Board's haste to disavow its Council is characterized as a pathetically amusing effort to show the administration that no central bank is needed when the Federal Reserve itself is so loyal and obedient.

A banker remarks: "The Council was like a small boy sticking his tongue out at the landlord while his mother is trying to renew the lease. Such disconcerting rudeness has to be punished. But the Reserve Board certainly breaks all records for plain and fancy kowtowing."

Still, with all their criticism of the Federal Reserve's subversive, the boys certainly hope that its act is convincing to Washington authorities.

ADVISERS

The Stock Exchange's new advisory board is primarily an experiment in public relations. The object is to regain public confidence by inviting suggestions and criticisms from outsiders and thus improve the charge that the Exchange is a closed corporation ruled by a group of master minds.

Wall Street comments that it will be a miracle if the advisers ever agree about anything among themselves. You'd have a hard time finding two people more diametrically opposed in their social and economic philosophy than ex-brain-truster Adolf Borie and George Houston of Baldwin Locomotive. John Hancock of Lehman Brothers is quite friendly to the New Deal while Fred I. Kent is inclined to scoff. The Board is inclined to be too busy arguing among themselves to give much attention to the Exchange.

Maybe that was the idea. If the advisers can't get together on recommendations the Exchange has a swell excuse for paying no attention to them. Meanwhile it reaps the kudos for opening its well guarded portals to external counsellors.

LEGION

New York learns that backstage leaders in the American Legion are trying to head off the bonus drive recently mentioned in this column. The Legion realizes they've carved out a tough job for themselves but they're anxious to avoid further friction with the White House.

General James Drain has the task of working up the universal draft into a red fire issue. Others will concentrate on persuading state delegations to the Legion convention that quiet diplomacy will accomplish more for veterans' benefits than a chip on the shoulder.

CHAMPION

Observers say chances for government action on a transatlantic dirigible route are brighter now than ever before. Enthusiasts who've hollered their heads off for years without getting to first base now find a sympathetic audience in the Howell aviation commission. The reason may be that commission member Hunsaker is an ex-Navy lighter-than-air expert. The idea is that Hunsaker will swing the commission which in turn will sell FDR.

Skeptics remark how much good this friend-at-court stuff does will depend on how many people remember the Akron.

SIDELIGHTS

A New York New Deal sympathizer remarks of those who are disappointed in the President's speech: "They won't be happy till they get Andy Mellon back." . . . If half the reports Wall Street hears are true all industry—including the movies—is set to emigrate from California if Upton Sinclair is elected. . . . A Florida pilot is suspected.

FOREIGN SPECIAL EXTRA

POLAND

Ever since the Polish Foreign Office indicated that Poland would not join Barthou's "Eastern Pact" against Germany, observers have been saying that the French-Polish entente was breaking down. There were even rumors of a secret military clause in the Polish-German non-aggression pact.

When Minister Bock set off his bomb in Geneva by announcing that Poland, as a Great Power, could no longer abide by the International Minorities Treaty, he moved without the consent of Paris and dared to flout the whole League of Nations to Barthou's face. The press says that the anti-French and anti-League demonstration was prompted from Berlin, that Warsaw-Paris relations have been torpedoed, that France has lost Poland to Germany.

The French-Polish "row," which is being echoed in vitriolic attacks by the Paris and Warsaw press, is a fake. Inside relations between the two capitals are of the very best, but each has its own motives in prolonging the apparent hostility. It is the culmination of a campaign which this column pointed out and explained several weeks ago.

Poland is Pro-French through and through. Peace with Russia and alliance with France are the keystones of Poland's foreign policy. She fears, however, that close Russian-French cooperation will force her out of her position of North European fulcrum. Friendship with Berlin is being used as a threat—and Berlin is the dupe. Hitler has already handed out trade concessions and a ten-year guarantee for the security of the Corridor—all sugar for Poland. But the Polish-German friendship will last only as long as Germany remains pliable.

France was to have frightened Poland into making a pro-French demonstration. Negotiations made that unnecessary, but Barthou decided to keep on making stage thunder for another reason. Poland's friendship is expected to lull Germany. But let anything untoward happen, and the French-Polish military pact will function promptly. Warsaw doesn't jump at the crack of Barthou's whip, as it used to—it has become a "Great Power" with an axe of its own to grind, but it's still 90 per cent French.

RUSSIA

The triumphal entry of Litvinov

and the Soviet delegation into the League of Nations was impressive and somewhat grotesque. Brilliant Barthou had overcome the numerous difficulties of precedence and prejudice—the stage was set, the show ready to begin. Just before the final act of election, Switzerland's representative got up to speak. He told of the Bolshevik crimes against humanity and religion, of the insidious disruptive work of the Comintern, of the tyranny and inefficiency that sent millions to Siberia or death by hunger. He spoke from the heart and every delegate knew that he spoke the truth. One could have heard a pin drop in the big room, and when he closed a storm of spontaneous applause broke from the benches. Barthou smiled, a very dry cynical sort of smile, and the USSR was admitted to the League by a vote of 38 to 3. "C'est la haute politique," remarked a French journalist to your correspondent, with a shrug.

Barthou has made Litvinov promise that the Comintern will shut up for the time being at least and has insisted that no Congress of Revolutionaries be called in Moscow this fall.

However, the Comintern press will howl for capitalist blood spilled—just enough to keep up the spirit and show the country that the old principles still live. In the meantime an extensive organization will be built up in Geneva under the cloak of diplomatic inviolability. Propaganda material in the diplomatic pouch, free use of the Swiss banks, and agents with diplomatic passports are prospects that Moscow party insiders are anticipating in high glee.

FRANCE

The French government was not at all amused by a recent statement of the French Senator, Bone, "We have done our best to find the truth and have not spared the American armament concerns. We hope and await that certain European countries, which are not completely controlled by the munitions factories, will soon do likewise," said the honorable gentleman naively. Under ordinary circumstances Paris would have laughed. The Stavisky scandal in all its political ramifications is blossoming again, however, and it might occur to some political group to start an investigation of Schneider-Creusot and Hotchkiss sales to Nazis in Germany and Austria. That would be too much for any government.

As a matter of fact there is small likelihood France is controlled by its armament industry. Monsieur Schneider is willing to part with most of the two billion franc profit that he earned from building the new French fortresses to keep the facts quiet. The Paris press already registers the effect of liberal donations. The armament industry is not only a tremendous public asset—a convincing argument for the French—but is managed by honest true-blues.

Even Sir Basil Zaharoff—originally Zacharias, by the way—is a saint in the light of unspooled virtue. Isn't it wonderful? It isn't done with mirrors, my friends, it's done with cash.

GERMANY

At the recent huge Nazi rally in Nuremberg 52,000 members of the "Voluntary Labor Service" marched by the Fuehrer and were greeted with special honors. They marched very well and held their spades as though they were more accustomed to guns. A few observers became curious and made some interesting discoveries.

The "Labor Service" consists of 250,000 men between the ages of 18 and 22. Their commander is a certain Colonel Hiri—some years ago he wrote a book urging special trench warfare training for the infantry of the future. Charges are under foot discipline, and spend most of their time learning to crawl through barbed wire entanglements. The road building and other public works which are their official task, occupy little of the curriculum.

In January the "Voluntary Labor Service" will become compulsory for all men between the ages of 20 and 22. Hiri will have 2.5 million recruits. Only 800,000 are to be taken at first, until facilities for a whole quota are provided. For the whole new name Germany is instituting the strictly forbidden universal compulsory military service. Nineteen hundred thirty-five will see the German military force raised to an effective strength of a million men—a conservative estimate of 300,000 soldiers and police, 200,000 Schutz Staffeln men, and 500,000 "Voluntary Laborers."

Europe waits in suspense for the appointment of Hitler's Second-in-Command and wonders why the important decision is delayed from week to week. In Berlin's inner circles a fight is raging with all the fixings of a dime novel. Hard-boiled Hermann Goering and "Gen. Henry" Himmler are having it out. Goering, S. S. Chief and boss of all police outside of Prussia, was Goebbels' Frankenstein. The little Propaganda Minister created him in the early days of Nazism as a counterbalance to Goering's dominating power, thinking that Himmler would be a willing tool. Goebbels got fooled. Having drained his master dry, Himmler went over to Goering's side and was an able assassin in the slaughter of June 30th. In fact Goebbels would have departed this life at the hands of Himmler's "blood-hounds" if he hadn't stayed close to Hitler's person during the clean-up. Since June 30th, Himmler and Goering have been at daggers' ends. Two "saviors" of Germany are too many. They are feverishly setting traps for each other. Goering wants Hitler's vice-job for himself; Goering, who always prefers to remain in the shade, has nominated Rudolf Fess, the faithful nonentity.

Hitler is unable to decide, as usual. He doesn't want to offend either of the powerful rivals. He's letting them fight it out. Will Hermann or Henry be the future?

PRISON FACTS PRESENTED AT EBBEL SESSION

FULLERTON, Oct. 6.—Plans for making the women's prison at Tehachas a self-supporting and re-habilitating institution have gone awry and the fruition of the original plans may not now be brought about except through new legislation, according to Mrs. Everett B. Latham, a member of the board of five that investigated and formulated plans.

The explanation of the situation was made by Mrs. Latham yesterday at the second meeting of the year of Ebbel club at the club house, where she was introduced by Mrs. Albert Launer, program chairman.

Mrs. Floyd Annin presided at the meeting, and Mrs. Monte Porter introduced Madame Grace Hall Rihaldt, concert soprano, who gave three numbers, with Mrs. V. Ashley Doss accompanying at the piano.

On preparing to move the prisoners to the new institution, Attorney General U. S. Webb ruled that they could not be moved, because the institution was not under the prison board, and prisoners could be in no institution except it was under that board, according to the speaker.

Subsequently those interested found that the attorney general, interpreting the same law, had permitted prisoners to be moved to an institution not under the prison board in 1922, and when faced with the fact, the attorney general declared that he was correct in his attitude; that he had made a mistake the first time, and was correcting it, the speaker said.

Until a new constitution is drafted for the state, allowing a prison board for women's institution, or until a new law is passed permitting the establishment of such a board, the prison will not be as intended, the speaker said.

Mrs. Albert Launer, editor of the Federated News, was endorsed as trustee for the state board, Miss Fonda Roberts reported in giving an account of the Orange county executive board meeting held at Yorba Linda Wednesday. She said a chief theme was that such women should keep alert to economic problems, and not only read the side they think they are on, but the opposing side also.

The annual fiesta of Fullerton Ebbel is scheduled for October 23. Mrs. Carrie McFadden Ford is chairman. She appointed on committees, Mrs. Alexander Anderson, Mrs. Martha Babize, Mrs. W. A. Goodwin, Mrs. Fritz Held, Mrs. Otto Idso, Mrs. A. W. Olsen, Miss Anna Nelson, Mrs. A. G. Oswald, Mrs. Hiram Smith, Mrs. S. W. Smith, Mrs. John Wagner, Mrs. Margaret Buttrey and Mrs. Y. W. Ramsey.

A vote of thanks and appreciation was given Mrs. A. W. Purdy and the arts and crafts section for their exhibit at the Los Angeles county fair and at a Los Angeles store. The exhibit took third prize.

Section announcements were made. Mrs. W. E. Tripp will be hostess to the drama section at her home October 12; Mrs. W. J. Carmichael announced the garden section will meet with Mrs. Henry Kroger on North Raymond avenue, October 18; Mrs. Adeline King and Mrs. Parry are to be assisting hostesses; the chorus practices each Tuesday, Mrs. George Riehl announced. Mrs. Carrie Ford will be hostess to the study section at her home on Grand avenue October 10.

Hostesses were Mrs. A. J. Edwards, Mrs. J. J. Alexander, Mrs. H. G. Howe, Mrs. A. G. Oswald, Mrs. Harold McCabe and Miss Roberts.

ASKS CITIZENS TO REFUSE FOOD STALLS TO ITINERANTS EVERY SUNDAY

ANAHEIM, Oct. 6.—Chief of Police James Bouldin is asking citizens of Anaheim to co-operate with him in stemming the annual winter tide of itinerants to this city. He is urging the people not to aid mendicants and to notify the police department when they call.

In asking citizens not to assist these wanderers Chief Bouldin said that it is not his intention to have anyone go hungry but there is no need for the citizens of Anaheim to feed these wanderers as ample provisions for food and shelter for these travelers has been made by state and federal authorities. Both the state and federal government are co-operating in maintaining camps for these homeless men, he said.

At the same time Chief Bouldin asked for the co-operation of householders who also issued instructions to officers of the department to keep itinerants moving through the town and not to permit establishment of camps. Yesterday, accompanied by Officer Sherman, Chief Bouldin visited all known hobo camps around the edge of the city and advised the men camped there to move on their way.

ART GROUPS OF LAGUNA BEACH GIVEN PRAISE

LAGUNA BEACH, Oct. 6.—Tribute to the work of various art groups through whose efforts Laguna Beach has developed into a recognized art center on the Pacific coast was paid Thursday night by L. E. Behrmer, well known Los Angeles impresario and civic worker, in an address before the Music Lovers' club at their regular monthly meeting at Hotel Laguna.

In the course of his remarks, he mentioned the painters, represented by the Laguna Beach Art association, whose canvases have contributed to the fame of the art colony, and the Laguna Beach Community players, whose activities are frequently mentioned in national publications dealing with the Little Theater movement. Mention also was made by the speaker of the high standards of craftsmanship revealed in industrial arts.

While commending the art colony on its progress along lines of painting, drama, dance and handicrafts, Behrmer regretted that music has not kept pace with other art activities. Next morning Bannister reads that TRACY KING, orchard leader, has been found dead in his apartment. He is searching for an "unknown blond," who visited King the night before. Bannister, remembering the girl in the taxi, is puzzled.

He sees her again that morning. The girl, who has the name JULIE FRANCE and swears she knows nothing of the murder. She begs Bannister to help her and he agrees.

He goes to see his old friend, JIM PAXTON, editor of the Tribune, and asks him to work on the King murder case for the Post. Later he returns to the hotel to see if he can find the girl who has disappeared.

Bannister goes to see the room in which King died, and the lands in the doorway something lands on his back.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

The pain in his back was sharp and ke-like. Bannister's face twisted in agony but he did not cry out. It was his assailant that became vocal with a sharp, angry, "Me-ow!" and then repeated it again, "Me-ow! me-ow!"

A cat! It must be a cat. Bannister twisted about, reaching for the animal. The cat evidently did not like such handling and objected. It's claws dug deeper, as it tried to maintain its precarious position. At last Bannister had the animal in a firm grip, pulled it about in front of him.

But was it a cat? Bannister had never seen such a creature. For a moment he thought it was a monkey. No, it couldn't be. It was drawing away from him, leaving hissing noises that were unmistakably unfriendly, unmistakably feline.

All this while Bannister had been kneeling. Now he set the animal on the floor, got to his feet. "Meow!" cried the cat and backed away.

The fur over its eyes and nose and covering its chin was very dark—almost black—with the definite outline of a mask. From out this mask bright blue eyes gazed with a sinister leer. The ears were dark, too, and the feet and tail. The rest of the body was brown, shading from rich chestnut to a creamy ivory on the chest.

A cat? Yes, Bannister knew what it was now. The masked face made it look rather like a monkey or a raccoon but it was a cat all right. A Siamese cat, a member of that cat family known as "royal" because for centuries

EARLY HISTORY OF STATE TOLD GRACE PARLOR

Students Elect Class Officers

GARDEN GROVE, Oct. 6.—Class officers were chosen at the local high school this week. Those elected were as follows: Seniors, president, Bob Wentz; vice president, Margaret Phillips; secretary, Len Mark; yell leader, Carroll Clingan; council members, Don Powers; class advisor, Victor McClain.

Juniors, president, Walter Zierler; vice president, Dorothy Smith; secretary, Eleanor Brady; yell leader, Clarence Nida; council member, Frances Merchant; class advisor, A. Eldelson.

They were pets of Siamese royalty. The cat withdrew still further, crouching uncertainly and then leaped quickly to a window ledge. There it sat, steadily regarding Bannister.

The man rubbed his bruised shoulders. "All right," he said, "well call it a trace—so long as you don't try that trick again! Lord, what a law! Keep your distance and I'll keep mine."

There were two windows in the bedroom. One on the south and one on the west. Bannister stepped to the nearest of them and looked out. Nothing below but a smooth plot of grass in the court. Beyond was the rear wing of the building, jutting out. Just as did this central wing. Certainly there was no access to this window from above or below.

He moved to the other window. A two-story cottage, white with a brown roof, stood below behind a boxwood hedge. It was a neat cottage, rather old-fashioned. Shades were drawn at the windows. Bannister knew the place. It belonged to old Judge Price, retired now and living in Florida.

But there was nothing to be seen from that window to explain the brownish stain on the carpet. That was the room that the object on the floor, caught his eye. Bannister stooped quickly and picked it up. He was studying it a moment later when he heard the outer door open. Bannister dropped the object in his pocket. An instant later Link, the hotel clerk, appeared in the bedroom doorway.

"Sorry to be gone so long," he apologized. "I thought it would only be a moment, but there are so many things—"

He did not complete the sentence. "The place is upset," he went on. "Nothing goes right. It's been that way since last night."

"I can imagine," Bannister said dryly. "Mind showing me just how King was lying when you found him?"

Plan Rally Day Exercises Oct. 7

GARDEN GROVE, Oct. 6.—Seventy-five workers of the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday school and interested friends gathered at the church this week for a basket dinner and for the purpose of outlining the work for the year.

Miss Pearl Crutfield, the new superintendent, was in charge of the meeting. Plans were discussed for the Rally day exercises to be held during the Sunday school hour next Sunday morning, commencing at 9:45 o'clock. The program will be observed by each department of the Sunday school. A special service will be held at 11 o'clock for teachers and workers in the form of a recognition and consecration service.

STUDY COURSE FOR PARENTS OUTLINED

GARDEN GROVE, Oct. 6.—Mrs. W. M. Kelsey, district chairman of parental education, addressed members of the Grammar School P-T-A. Thursday afternoon in the Washington school, summarizing plans for a parents' study course which she will conduct under sponsorship of local organizations.

Classes will meet in the Washington school from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. each Wednesday for five weeks beginning October 10. All parents interested are urged to attend.

Reichmannoff's "Humoresque" was rendered as a piano solo by Miss Opal Knox, substitute music teacher. Devotional songs were led by the Rev. J. M. Richmond.

Mrs. Mary Thompson, principal of Hoover school, requested cooperation of local members in the organization of a parent-teacher group at Hoover school. Mrs. Victor Echols presided at the business session when reports were submitted by Mrs. E. A. Monroe, budget chairman, and Mrs. D. S. Jordan, who outlined the year's program.

The monthly executive board meeting was held in the morning followed by a pot luck luncheon in the home of Mrs. Herman Christensen.

BIRTHDAY OBSERVED

LA HABRA, Oct. 6.—Lafene O'Neill celebrated her seventh birthday anniversary with a party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. O'Neill, this week.

Outdoor games were played and a birthday cake decorated in pink and green was served at the refreshment hour.

Guests were Ruth Peabody, Nancy Brewer, Beverly Jamison, Agnes Ashlier, Imogene Scott, Betty Hammer, Bobby McCamish, Jerry Riley, Kenneth and Keith Russell, Bobby Joe Mead and Donald Stedman.

And yet there was nothing there that seemed out of keeping with what Bannister had learned about Tracy King. A vain man, no doubt. Extravagant or he would not have been living at the Shelby Arms. A young man who liked to give parties, judging from the tall glasses and bottles Bannister had seen in the living room. A young man above all, who liked to have a good time and generally succeeded.

The door of the clothes closet was ajar. Bannister drew it back, then whistled softly to himself. Tracy King must certainly have had a weakness for clothes! Rows of suits hung there—two dozen at least. They were in shades ranging from pale beige to black. A plushy brown overcoat stood out from above or below.

He moved to the other window. A two-story cottage, white with a brown roof, stood below behind a boxwood hedge. It was a neat cottage, rather old-fashioned. Shades were drawn at the windows. Bannister knew the place. It belonged to old Judge Price, retired now and living in Florida.

But there was nothing to be seen from that window to explain the brownish stain on the carpet. That was the room that the object on the floor, caught his eye. Bannister stooped quickly and picked it up. He was studying it a moment later when he heard the outer door open. Bannister dropped the object in his pocket. An instant later Link, the hotel clerk, appeared in the bedroom doorway.

"Sorry to be gone so long," he apologized. "I thought it would only be a moment, but there are so many things—"

He did not complete the sentence. "The place is upset," he went on. "Nothing goes right. It's been that way since last night."

"I can imagine," Bannister said dryly. "Mind showing me just how King was lying when you found him?"

Yes, the place was certainly

Newport Circle Tea on Monday

NEWPORT BEACH, Oct. 6.—The Newport circle of the Women's Aid of the Christ Church-By-the-Sea will hold a tea Monday evening at the home of Mrs. J. J. Atwood, 106 Thirtieth street, in Newport, it was announced by Mrs. Ida P. Naylor, president. The circle met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Nellie M. Graham to plan season activities. Officers of the combined Aid groups will be elected at a general meeting Tuesday night at Christ Church-By-the-Sea.

With a wave of his hand he indicated the personal possessions of the dead orchestra leader. "Somebody will have to attend to all this," he said. "Until there are some sort of orders everything will be left here just as it is now."

There was a small bath leading off the bedroom. Bannister inspected it, then returned to the living room.

He crossed to the windows and looked down. "No fire escapes around here as far as I know," he said. "They're at the rear."

Bannister was poking about the papers on the desk. "If it was the girl who shot him," he said suddenly, "how do you figure that she got away?"

"There's a stairway," Link explained. "It's back of the elevator. She could have gone down the stairway and into the laundry. Then she could have crossed the hall to the tradesmen's entrance."

"And gone out the rear way," Bannister nodded solemnly. "Oh, I see!"

"It must have been the girl," Link insisted. "She was the only one who came up here."

"You saw her, did you?" "Yes, and I'd know her anywhere. Couldn't miss that green outfit."

"Suppose she wore something else?"

"I'd know her anyway," the hotel clerk declared emphatically. "I'd know her the minute I saw her!"

Bannister explored the room for another 10 minutes. There was little to be gained there, he thought, but he wanted to fix certain details in his mind. Then he said, "Well, I guess I'm through here." The door down to the first floor. Bannister thanked the clerk and took his leave. But he was less than half way across the lobby when a voice stopped him. "Just a minute, young man!" it called. "Just a minute!"

Bannister turned. He faced a short woman in a blue and gray sweater suit, hurrying toward him. The woman's cheeks were quite pink; her hair was a slightly faded titian, and her voice was determined. "I want to see you!" the woman declared.

BOOK REVIEWS

BY BRUCE CATTON

Dr. Louis Berg was medical officer at New York's Welfare Island prison for some time before the sensational raid of last January. Indeed, it was at least partly because of his campaign for reform that the raid took place. Now, in "Revelations of a Prison Doctor," he tells his story.

As a disclosure of the way political crookedness can combine with public indifference and stupidity to produce frightful conditions, this book is almost unique. I know of no other book which shows quite as clearly the dreadful price society can be forced to pay for its apathy.

Here was a prison that was practically run by the worst inmates. Sick men lay helpless in their cells while healthy gangsters lounged at ease in the prison hospital. Narcotics were peddled openly all over the place.

All of the evils that prison is supposed, if not to correct, at least to check, flourished here in a regular hothouse.

In short, this Welfare Island prison, before the raid, must have been about as fine an imitation of hell on earth as mankind ever devised.

The reason for it all is crystal clear. First, crooked politics. Second—a particularly hateful kind of public dumbness which not only puts up with crooked politics, but holds that a prison ought not to be a health resort and that any attempt to run a prison sensibly is "coddling the criminals."

Dr. Berg has written a sensational book, and an unanswerable one. I can only hope that it gets an exceptionally wide reading.

The Civil war was the greatest tragedy in American life, says Historian James Truslow Adams. Quite properly, then, he gives his new book which analyzes that conflict the title, "America's Tragedy." The essence of the tragedy, he says, was this: that in the South men developed a society which placed its emphasis on human values, and not on mere getting and spending—but that force of circumstance tied this society to an institution, slavery, which inevitably had to be overthrown.

Everything worked out wrong. If cotton, gin and power loom had not been invented just when they were, slavery would probably have fallen of its own weight, long before it became an "issue." If Northern abolitionists and Southern fire-eaters had not spent 20 years inflaming passions, a peaceable settlement could have taken place.

If the rise of the cotton empire had not exactly paralleled the rise of Northern industrialism, the clash between the two societies would not have been so direct and bitter. But nobody got a break. Force of circumstances compelled the South to weld itself more and more firmly to slavery just at the time when world opinion was condemning slavery.

It was America's supreme tragedy—that the one section of the land which took a broad humanistic view of human life had to be the one which tied itself to a doomed institution. Mr. Adams gives a truly excellent survey of the war and its causes. He suggests that the conflict left great bitterness, not so much because of battle and destruction, as because of the ranting of the stay-at-homes. His book is a fine summary of a tragic era.

Published by Scribner's.

Charles Brackett's malicious little novel, "Entirely Surrounded," (Knopf) is a glorified peep show. Open it and you can discover how the better advertised intelligence live—and if the net result is to make you think Heaven that you're just one of the boys, that may be what Mr. Brackett intended.

The book tells of the doings of a gang of writing folk at a Vermont summer camp. The chief character seems to be modeled on Alexander Woolcott, and the gang's favorite diversions seems to be exchanging insults and playing croquet. If that sort of fun doesn't appeal to you, you'll find the book pretty thin.

To change the subject rather violently—parents of small children ought to get a good deal out of "Your Child Is Normal," by Dr.

Grace Adams (Covici-Friede). Here is a sensible book on children, explaining that they are normally rather than cantankerous little monkeys, and that most of them will probably make out all right even if they do give mother gray hairs. There is comforting stuff here for harassed fathers and mothers.

Modern Poets

By MISS BEULAH MAY

Three poems by John Richard Moreland.

"I Love All Things That Cluster Round The Sea"
I love all things that cluster round the sea;
Sand-dunes wave washed, and glad wild things that beat Against the wind, the flash of children's feet,
Rude huddled huts, driftwood,
grass blowing free,
Seines in the sun and spars of hickory,

Great ships slow moving, and boats small and neat,
Old mossy wrecks that once were sound and fleet,
Half hidden by a pine or bayberry tree.

But when the three feet have homeward gone,
And from the huts blue smoke
curls towards the sky,
And yellow lights gleam on the waters gray,

There comes a peace as soothing
as the dawn
As one by one the little boats go by
And drop their anchors in the quiet bay.

The Priest Is Come And The
Candles Burn
The white moth is wooing his chosen mate,
The birds have a nest in the weed and fern,
But, love, you kneel at my heart
too late,
The priest is come and the
candles burn.

Where were you love, when the morning was heavy with mists
And in life's noonday before vivid dreams had departed?
Why did you tarry when twilight was weary with waiting?
Now it is midnight....pale sleep-time....and I am chill-hearted!

The moonflower bends with the moth's frail weight,
The birds are asleep in the grass and the fern,
But, love, you kneel at my heart
too late,
The priest is come and the
candles burn.

January Night
I shall remember this night....
The dandelion-tipped candles tall and white,
Low wind like hungry blood-
hounds at the pane,
While down the mullioned casement mercury bright
Wriggled incessantly the snakes of rain.

I shall remember this hour....
The boisterous wind. Death in his silent power,
Dark sniffling hounds...my furious grief too deep
For tears....and Sheila pale as a cornel flower,
All unafraid, smiling in her last sleep.

'PALOOKA' AND
BIG FOOTBALL
FILM AT STATE

A gala double program has been arranged at Walker's State theater for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, combining a comedy with a lot of laughs and a great football picture. Manager Vic Walker announced today.

The comedy is "Palooka," with a whole flock of stars, including Jimmie Durante, Lupe Velez, Stuart Erwin, Marjorie Rambeau, Robert Armstrong, Thelma Todd, William Cagney and Mary Carlisle. The story is about a not-to-bright young chap whose manager is attempting to make a fighter of him, against his mother's wishes. The difficulties he encounters include Lupe Velez as a night club entertainer who dazzles him into forgetting home, mother and sweetheart.

Some of California's greatest grid heroes are in the lineup of the teams appearing in "College Coach." They include Warburton, Griffith, McNeish, Palmer, Harper, Rosenbaw, Coates and Muller. Bands, cheer leaders and crowds add to the color of the film, which reveals the story of what goes on behind the scenes in some colleges where winning football teams are the all-important thing.

Ann Dvorak, Pat O'Brien as the coach and Lyle Talbot as the conceited imported football star, are the pivots in a triangular love affair. Dick Powell is cast as the hero, while others in the picture include Arthur Byron, Hugh Herbert, Guinn Williams, Nat Pendleton and Arthur Hohl.

A two-reel color musical comedy, "Service With a Smile," completes the program.

'I GIVE MY LOVE',
'ORIENT EXPRESS'
ON BILL AT STATE

A picture embracing the colorful life of artists, with a Greenwich Village setting, is the first run film which has been booked on the mid-week double feature program of Walker's State theater.

It is "I Give My Love," from the story by Vicki Baum. The leading players are Wynne Gibson and Paul Lukas, whose work is said to bring forth both laughter and tears in this emotional drama. Eric Linden also is in the cast.

The other feature, "Orient Express," tells the story of seven lives that are completely changed as the crack European train rushes across the Continent from Ostend to Constantinople. Heather Angel and Norman Foster are the stars. The supporting cast includes Ralph Morgan, Herbert Mundin, Una O'Connor and Irene Ward.

"The Doctor," another in a series of song hit stories, is the short subject on the bill.

Ken Maynard Has Dual Role in New Western Thriller

Brother fights brother, a frontier village is set afire and two cliffs are dynamited as features of the new Ken Maynard picture, "Honor of the Range," which comes to Walker's State theater next Friday and Saturday. Maynard plays a dual role as sheriff and as his weak twin brother, who runs the village store. Cecilia Parker is the girl in the story.

Short subjects on the bill are a news reel; a chapter of the new serial, "Pirate Treasure"; an Edgar Kennedy comedy, "Quiet Please," and an Oswald cartoon, "Chicken Reel."

WILL ROGERS IN
'JUDGE PRIEST'
AT WEST COAST

Will Rogers in the most human and lovable role he has yet played is the screen fare promised at the Broadway theater where Will's latest picture, "Judge Priest," begins a five-day engagement tomorrow.

According to advance reports, the star has never been so well suited as by this screen character, the shrewd, kindly but strong-willed Kentucky jurist, who is already famous in the stories of Irvin S. Cobb, perhaps America's most noted humorist.

One does not expect drama in a village, perhaps, but in "Judge Priest" plenty of it transpires, according to advance accounts. The Judge's nephew, a novice lawyer, and his sweetheart, a girl whose birth is shrouded in mystery, figure importantly in the touching and dramatic story. Always there is Judge Priest, who dilutes justice with the milk of human kindness and who helps to shoulder the troubles of the town.

The notable cast includes Tom Brown, Anita Louise, Rochelle Hudson, Henry B. Walthall, David Landau and Stepin Fetchit.

Short subjects include a Pete Smith oddity, "Taking Care of Baby," a musical with "Ben Pollack and Band," a Paramount color cartoon, "Poor Cinderella," and Register World News events.

CHARLIE CHAN
THRILLER NOW
AT WEST COAST

Warner Oland, famed for his interpretations of Charlie Chan, smoothest of modern sleuths, again portrays the bland Chinese detective of a new mystery thriller, "Charlie Chan in London," which opened at the West Coast theater yesterday for an engagement of three days.

In his latest adventure, Charlie Chan invades Sherlock Holmes' realm and journeys to London to solve the most amazing mystery of his remarkable career in criminology.

The sister of a man doomed to hang for murder believes him innocent and pleads with Chan to take the case and try to find the real murderer to exonerate her brother. With only 65 hours remaining before the innocent man must meet his death, Chan gets to work. He finds that he is working against time and a murderer who has the cunning of a fox.

Drue Leyton and Raymond Miland supply the romantic interest. Comedy is injected by E. E. Clive and Elsa Buchanan. Other important members of the cast are Mona Barrie, Alan Mowbray, Madge Bellamy and others.

Short subjects include a comedy, "The Big Idea" with Ted Healy and his Stooges, a Terrytoon cartoon, "The Girl at the Ironing Board," a trip to "Darkest Africa," and World News events.

Two Features to Show Here Soon

Love tangles and marital mixups are said to be embodied in the form the ingredients of the hilarious situations in "The Kansas City Princess" which opens at the West Coast theater October 14 with a second feature, "Girl of the Limberlost," screen version of Gene Stratton-Porter's famous story of the same name.

Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell have the roles of two good digging maniacs in "The Kansas City Princess" while other parts are taken by Hugh Heston, Robert Armstrong, Hobart Cavanaugh, T. Roy Barnes, Vince Barnett and others. Louise Dresser, Ralph Morgan, Marian Marsh and H. B. Warhall play the leading roles in "Girl of the Limberlost."

Short subjects include a Terrytoon cartoon, "Mice in Council," and Register World News events.

'JUDGE PRIEST'

PLAYS CHARLIE CHAN

An artist's impression of that "first citizen" of Honolulu, Charlie Chan, as impersonated by Warner Oland in his newest mystery drama, "Charlie Chan in London," which is the current attraction at the West Coast theater, is shown below.

DOUBLE FEATURE
PROGRAM CLOSES

"The Richest Girl in the World," starring Miriam Hopkins in the title role, was a second feature, "The Dude Ranger," featuring George O'Brien, Irene Hervey, LeRoy Mason and others, will show for the last times at the Broadway theater tonight.

As "The Richest Girl in the World," Miss Hopkins is attracted to Joel McCrea, but doesn't want to marry him unless she is assured that he desires her and not her millions. Reginald Denny and Henry Stephenson have important parts.

In "The Dude Ranger" O'Brien takes the part of a dude ranger who inherits a cattle ranch being depleted by rustlers. The picture is a fast-moving action film, interspersed with romance.

Short subjects include a Terrytoon cartoon, "Mice in Council," and Register World News events.

Detective Story
Ends Run Tonight

Closing its run at Walker's State theater tonight, "Beyond the Law" presents Tim McCoy in another of his adventure series. Romance and the thrilling solution of a daring train robbery are combined in this story of a railroad detective. Shirley Grey has the lead opposite McCoy.

The program also presents a news reel; the second chapter of "Pirate Treasure"; an Ernest Truex comedy, "Expectant Father"; and a Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Shanghaied."

Book 'Caravan'

'THE FOUNTAIN'
OPENS MONDAY
AT WEST COAST

A new deviation in love triangles is depicted in the new emotional drama, "The Fountain," starring Ann Harding, which will play the West Coast theater for three days starting next Monday.

The story concerns a countess who is married to a German officer during the World war. While he is at the front she meets a schoolboy sweetheart, an English aviator, interned in the same castle with her, and they succumb to a reawakened love.

The husband returns a cripple and the triangle assumes a novel aspect when the two lovers find themselves worshipping the man for his spiritual strength in the face of their exposure. Thus the love triangle is momentarily deadlocked. It becomes relieved only with the death of the self-sacrificing husband.

In support of Miss Harding is Brian Aherne, the English screen star, who is seen as her lover, while Paul Lukas portrays the part of the philosophical husband. The supporting cast includes Jean Hersholt, Violet Kemble-Soper, Ralph Forbes and Sara Haden.

The program of short subjects includes a comedy, with Vince Barnett and Billy Gilbert in "Super Stupid," a musical, "Club Continental," with Leon Belasco and his orchestra, and World News.

WEST COAST TO SHOW MYSTERY,
MOVIE FILMS

Two entertaining feature pictures are scheduled to be presented at the West Coast theater next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The first feature is "365 Nights in Hollywood," featuring such popular players as James Dunn, Alice Faye, Frank Mitchell, Jack Durant, John Bradford and others. "365 Nights in Hollywood" tells the story of a down and out film director who hooks up with a fake studio school of acting and tries to make something of Alice Faye, a "sucker" from Florida. When Frank Melton, another yodel, puts up the money for a picture, Dunn, as the director gets a comeback chance and is successful in turning out a box office winner by double-crossing heads of the fake school.

The second feature is the strangest and most fantastic and exciting of all S. S. Van Dine's murder mystery dramas, "The Dragon Murder Case." Warren William plays the leading role as the famous sleuth, Philo Vance. Eugene Pallette again plays the part of Sargeant Heath. Robert McWade again takes the part of district attorney.

LOVE DRAMA TO

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1934

University Women to Meet Thursday Night

Plans for the opening meeting of Orange County branch, American Association of University Women next Thursday night in the Y.W.C.A. rooms, were outlined at a recent meeting of the officers in the home of their president, Mrs. Horace A. Scott, 2208 North Ross street.

A special effort is to be made to have all programs of exceptional cultural value and interest, and draw into the association, every eligible Orange county woman. For programs held in the Y.W. club-rooms or any similar spacious meeting place, other women who have not attended college or university, may be admitted upon payment of a small fee.

"Current Trends" has been selected as the year's study theme, and each program will exemplify such trends either in literature, music, drama or economic phrases. Next Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock, Mrs. E. E. Smith of Anaheim, chairman of literature in the California federation of women's clubs, will speak on "Current Trends in Literature." Musical numbers will feature Mary Steffenson's vocal trio composed of Mrs. Steffenson, Miss Beulah Parker and Miss Laura Joiner.

This year's officers for the county branch are Mrs. Horace Scott, president; Mrs. Hiram Currey, vice president; Miss Dorothy Wentz, recording secretary; Mrs. DeWitt Dudley, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. J. Smith, treasurer; Miss Mabel McFadden, Mrs. P. H. Budd, Mrs. Raymond Adkinson, Miss Ruth Frothingham, directors, and Mrs. Charles C. Brisco, program chairman.

Plans Go Forward for Annual Membership
Dinner

Preparations are well under way for the annual membership dinner of Santa Ana Y.W.C.A. which is to take place Thursday night of next week in the parish rooms of Episcopal Church of the Messiah, with a half hour worship service at 6 o'clock to precede the dinner.

This worship service, always a beautiful and impressive rite, promises to be unusually effective this year as Miss Rowena Newcomb, general chairman, and her committee of Wrycende Magdencub club members complete their plans. It will be open to all women of the community and will be given in its entirety by the club members instead of featuring a speaker as in previous years.

Women of the church will serve dinner at 6:30 o'clock, for which table decorations are being planned by Girls Reserves under direction of Miss Mary Porter, Girl Reserve secretary, and their president, Miss Jean Mulbar. Girl Reserves will serve the menu also. Miss Mabel McFadden, president of the Y. W., and her officers will have charge of the short after-dinner program at which welcome be accorded. Miss Mary Warner Howard, new general secretary of the Y. W., and Miss Porter, likewise a newcomer to the city. Their responses and community singing will provide the chief program interest.

Dinner reservations must be made through the Y.W.C.A. not later than Tuesday evening.

Autumn's Rich Colors
Used in Luncheon
Decorations

When Mrs. F. C. Arnin entertained Octagon club members in her home, 1906 North Broadway on Thursday afternoon, she gave expression to her artistic ability by making her luncheon table an arresting study in autumnal designs. Oddly shaped gourds were nestled in autumn leaves of brilliant hues, interspersed with the blue-silver leaves of eucalyptus. Slender candles in deep blue in silver candlesticks added the final decorative note.

Place cards were written for the hostess, Mrs. Arnin, Mrs. Eugene Thomas of Irvine, Mrs. Charles Hunt of Anaheim, Mrs. Claudine Irvine, Mrs. Ray Johnson, Mrs. Charles Lake and Mrs. L. A. Ford of Garden Grove, and one special guest, Mrs. Clarence M. McClintock. The place cards (which later did double duty as tally cards for bridge scores) suggested traveling in compliment to Mrs. Lake who leaves at an early date for a two months' visit with her parents in Temple, Texas.

Bridge was played in the afternoon with Mrs. Johnson taking prize for high score, and Mrs. McClintock for second high. Prizes were tied in yellow, orange and brown in harmony with the general autumnal effect of flower decorations of the home. Included was a pretty travel gift which the hostess had chosen for Mrs. Lake.

Party Guests Shower
Many Pretty Gifts
On Bride-Elect

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pinnix, 709 North Shelton street, was scene of one of the week's pleasant parties, when relatives and friends assembled there to compliment Miss Grace Pinnix, daughter of the hosts, in honor of her approaching marriage to Charles Wetzel.

A series of lively games offered entertainment. Prizes awarded in an amusing marshmallow contest went to Parks Vanhoy, scoring high, and Mrs. John Gillam, low. Miss Pinnix had the pleasure of opening packages brought by the guests, and claiming for use in her future home, the many lovely articles disclosed. Following this interval refreshments of fruit punch, ice cream and cake were served.

Sharing the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Pinnix and their daughter, Miss Juanita Pinnix, were Mr. and Mrs. Parks Vanhoy, San Bernardino; Mr. and Mrs. Jess Triplett, Fullerton; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Golden, Theodore Mayberry, Mrs. John Gillam and Mrs. daughter Louise, Long Beach; Mrs. Hugh Vanhoy, Wilmington; Mrs. Chester Drant, San Pedro; Mr. and Mrs. James Cockerham and the Misses Esther and Gladys Cockerham, Garden Grove; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Triplett, Irene and Orville Triplett, Anaheim; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Triplett and family, Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Morgan and daughter Betty, Miss Anna Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Pinnix and Teddy Jr., Hazel and Dannie Pinnix, Santa Ana.

Pioneer Group Sponds
Afternoon With
Mrs. Diers

Pioneer club members of Sedgwick W.R.C. had another of their happy meetings Thursday when Mrs. Henry J. Diers received them in her home, 1115 North Main street. There was a short business session conducted by the president, Mrs. Emma Mosbaugh, after which members enjoyed a social afternoon.

The big glassed-in sun porch of the home, with its trailing vines and many green plants, made ideal setting for the affair and the informal program ranged from travel talks to readings. Mrs. Mary Ramsdale told of her summer visit with a sister in Minneapolis and in her old home in Minnesota. Mrs. Dora Spangler described an equally enjoyable trip to Oregon, from which she recently returned.

Mrs. Hannah Huntington gave a clever reading, "A Voice from Iowa" and Mrs. Martha Ritchey discussed "The Book Divine." Mrs. Fannie Cunningham talked on happiness, describing it as a "perfume which you can't pour on others without getting a few drops on yourself."

The pioneers accepted the invitation of Mrs. Sarah Alford, president of Shiloh Circle, ladies of the G.A.R. to attend the Circle's 40th anniversary celebration in Pythian hall Friday afternoon, October 19. Reports of ailing members were given, including that of the club's patriotic instructor, Mrs. Annie Arnold, confined to her home, 405 South Birch street, with illness.

Concluding her friendly hospitality Mrs. Diers invited guests to the dining room where roses and anemones graced a long table arranged for the entire group as they enjoyed a salad course and coffee followed by that marvelous coffee cake for which the hostess is famous among all her friends. Her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Pease of Orange, and granddaughter, Mrs. Howard Andrews of Anaheim, assisted in serving.

Present with the hostess, Mrs. Diers, and her daughter and granddaughter, Mrs. Pease and Mrs. Andrews, were Mesdames Emma Mosbaugh, Johanna Cole, Ella Wilson, Dora Spangler, Hannah Huntington, Mary Ramsdale, Margaret Culver, Maude Wallace, Marietta Phillo, Sarah Alford, Alice Kryhl, Fannie Cunningham, Cassie Ferguson, Martha Ritchey, Helen Kellogg Aubin, and two special guests, Mrs. Lula Hall, president of Sedgwick W.R.C. and Mrs. Elizabeth Birkhead, official "trailer" of the Pioneer club.

October Barn Program

Gives Emphasis To Spanish Theme

Definitely Spanish in theme, the Community Players' October program in The Barn Thursday night offered music, poetry, a talk on contemporary Spanish dramatists and a one-act play in addition to business and social phases.

Mrs. Burr Shafer had a large committee to aid in planning this varied program introduced after Miss Clara Kate Owens, Barn chairman concluded the business meeting. Reports included that on ticket sales for the major productions of the season, given by Burr Shafer; one on the financial situation as affecting The Barn and membership in the association, by R. Carson Smith; one on try-outs for "Green Grow the Lilacs," by Miss Owens; on the original one-act playwriting contest by Arthur Collins, and on scenery committee plans by Mrs. Marshall Harrois.

Miss Owens also announced program numbers, opening with Spanish solos by Clinton Campbell with Miss Beatrice Granas at the piano, "A Mi Pola" and "La Cucaracha" were his numbers, sung with a clear, true baritone voice and clear enunciation. Miss Beulah May read a group of new poems, the majority of them on a Spanish theme. All were distinguished by that quality of form and color which her work possesses in such high quality.

Miss Lella Watson centered her talk on the Quintero Brothers, Serafin and Joaquin, probably the best known of the modern Spanish dramatists. She dwelt upon the quality of gaiety and humor in their work, explaining that much of it was lost in translation, although translated plays yet possess buoyancy and charm. Spanish dramatists, she declared, avoid risqué situations and dialogue, and the Quintero Brothers are no exception to the rule. In closing her talk, she outlined the plot of one of their full length plays, translating some of the clever passages.

Exemplifying the 200 or more one-acts which they have produced was the production staged by Mrs. Shafer of "A Sunny Morning" with Gertrude Horn and J. Parley Smith in the leading roles of "Dona Laura" and "Don Gonzalo," and Maurine Andrews and Wylie Carlyle as "Petr" and "Juanito." The sparkling little play was well presented and equally well received, winning a succession of laughs by its clever lines interpreted with skill by the quartet of players.

To conclude the evening, Mrs. Shafer and her committee including those on the program, served coffee and home-made cookies as members and guests lingered to discuss the program and the winter series of meetings.

Circus Supper Proves
Entertaining Event
For Sorority

All the joys of circus days were recalled Thursday night to members of Sigma Tau Psi sorority members when they arrived at the home of Miss Jane Hill, 203 1-2 West Twentieth street, to join in a "circus supper."

Balloons in bright colors were as plentiful as on any circus ground, and serpentine twined its vivid spirals through the air as the gaily costumed girls entered the home. There were absurd clowns, riders in frilled ballet ruffles, and a dignified "ring master" in riding breeches and boots to flourish a long whip. This role was capably filled by Miss Alice Hanson who directed the evening's fun.

The buffet supper was served from a cleverly decorated table where a circus scene was portrayed and where appropriate favors were tiny carved elephants each beneath a sheltering palm. In addition to the supper menu pink lemonade, popcorn balls and animal crackers were available throughout the evening.

Miss Jean Rowland, in vivid gypsy attire, told fortunes by any preferred means, palmistry, crystal gazing or reading of the cards, and the entire evening was one of gaiety and charm.

Sorority guests enjoying Miss Hill's hospitality were the Misses Wanda Norman, Peggy Sudduth, Clarice Demers, Betty Demers, Mary Creutz, Ellen Reid, Helen Markel, Julia Thorndike, Georgia Turner, Mrs. W. W. Barnett, all of Santa Ana, and Miss Ruth Poore of Long Beach.

Sigma Tau Psi members present were the Misses Genevieve Glover, Jean House, Alice Hanson, Jean Rowland, Betty Rowland, Mary Emil Majors, Alice Majors, Betty Barkman, the hostess, Miss Hill, Mrs. Thomas Jentzen and Mrs. Edward Sugden, and one pledge, Miss Vivian Riglers.

Bridge was played, with interest in the contest heightened by a scalloping prize finally won by Mrs. Mabel Read. Miss Jean Rowland and Mrs. Charles Tramel were rewarded for high and low scoring.

Mrs. Buxton's mother, Mrs. Charles Buxton, took special part in the event, playing piano solos, "I Love You Truly" and Lohengrin's Wedding March.

Overhung with streamers and centered with a miniature bridal party, a large table was piled high with miscellaneous shower gifts for Miss Hanson. After packages had been opened, guests went to the main dining hall where salad and dessert courses were served.

A FROCK WITH MOTHER AND DAUGHTER APPEAL

PATTERN 2037

Little girls should—and often do—insist upon frocks in which they can run and romp to their hearts' content while mothers are frequently most exacting as to the way things look. Here is a design that will satisfy both the interested parties. It has an inverted pleat front and back that is perfect for romping, and nice, comfortable bloomers underneath—these are for the benefit of its small wearer. Then there is a chic little yoke, a buttoned-over tab closing, and very unusual little sleeves. Mothers may make them with the two parts seamed together as in the sketch—or she may omit the lower section.

Pattern 2037 is available only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 takes 2-1/8 yards 36 inch fabric and 1-4 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Send for the new WINTER issue of the ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK and know what is new in smart clothes. It takes you through the whole of fashion from lingerie to outer garments. Not overlooking some alluring new house frocks... and bearing in mind the needs of the younger generation. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

THE TINYMITES

The little men walked right along, and Dotty said, "You're very strong, to carry such a monstrous cake. Why don't you rest a while?"

"You're traveling at quite a gait. We'll gladly sit down here and wait."

"Don't worry, we're not tired," replied one wee man, with a smile.

The woman who had baked the cake then said, "Now, everyone, we'll take a short cut through this group of trees. Our journey then will end."

"Be just as careful as can be. That cake is breakable, you see. It'll cave in, in the middle, if you chance to let it bend."

"That will be great," one wee man said. "I see the open spot, ahead." "You're right," replied the woman. Soon the cake was placed upright.

"Ah, what a sight," said Goldy. "Gee, the cake looks pretty as can be. I'll bet the wee men want to sleep in their new home to-night."

"You bet we do," came the reply. "All right, then, men, we'll

Among the numerous cards and letters received at KREG for Harry L. Rateson, "Gardener of the Air" scheduled each Monday, Wednesday and Thursday at 8:45 p. m. a card commenting upon last Monday's broadcast was received from a listener in "The Valley of the Moon," El Verano, California, postmarked Sonoma. The card reads as follows:

"Radio Station KREG, Santa Ana, Calif.
"Dear Sir:
I tuned in on your station on the night of October 1st and heard 'The Garden of the Air'—instructions on how to plant borders—how to prepare the soil and about drainage. Your station comes in very clear with very little static."

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Nels A. Nielsen, Jr., Box 54, Sonoma, Calif.

As the writer is located approximately 45 miles north of San Francisco, the technical department of KREG was pleased to know that the station is being so well received, especially as the broadcast mentioned by the listener was made early in the evening and while many stations, and even others operating on the same frequency and wavelength, were operating.

News Behind the News

brain of Germany? The odds are even.

The radical Rosenberg faction of the Berlin Foreign Office is triumphing over the ruins of the French-Polish entente. The arrival of Nazi diplomats see it as a sure Nazi victory and are confident that Warsaw will leave the League of Nations and join Germany in an official alliance. Maybe the Polish delegation will leave Geneva—if that happens to suit Barth's complicated plans. Wouldn't the boys in Berlin be surprised if they knew the real state of affairs behind the Paris curtain? Cool, experienced Neurath would be a little less sure of himself.

AUSTRIA
Mussolini is negotiating for a pact between Austria's neighbors to guarantee hands off from Vienna, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia have declared that a Habsburg restoration is just as dangerous for them as an Austrian Anschluss with Germany. They demand Vienna's solemn promise that the Habsburg throne will not be raised. Chancellor Schuschnigg, an ardent monarchist, says that such a demand is in direct defiance with Austria's independence. It looks as though the little country would remain one of the powder magazines of Central Europe.

Austrian financial circles which helped engineer the Nazi pact reveal that Berlin spent 20 million dollars on Austrian trouble-making in the first half of 1934. The Austrian financiers implicated in the transactions have been more or less condoned on the grounds that they were only business. They are too numerous and powerful to touch.

Plans are under way at the Vatican for the eventual canonization of the murdered Chancellor Dollfus. St. Engelbert will be declared one of the martyrs of the century.

JAPAN
Admiral Yamamoto and his delegation have definite instructions from Tokyo when they get to London for preliminary naval talks. Japan wants only "defensive arms." The reason is clear: Tokyo's imperialistic policy concentrates on China, not far away. The fast cruisers and submarines that Japan is building are sufficient to cut off foreign merchant marine. An American or British navy would have to come a long way, possibly only with large radius ships, which the Japanese would find.

Tokyo further declines to discuss Far Eastern politics, the question of China's autonomy, or the problems arising from air forces and naval bases. Tokyo obviously wants free rein, and London feels that the conference is a waste of money.

GOVERNOR

There comes once in a political lifetime, a candidate who is unafraid of special interests, corporate control of government, and domination of the utilities in public life. Such a man is Raymond L. Haight, dynamic Progressive gubernatorial nominee. Haight is a square shooting, hard working, attorney that is not afraid of such problems as unemployment relief, old age pensions, and tax reduction.

Having a background of pioneer ancestry this native son is heart and soul in this campaign to give this state back to all of the people. When Raymond L. Haight was Commissioner of Corporations he made California safe from stock swindlers by revoking the permits of nearly 4,000 companies, that upon investigation were discovered to be of a fraudulent nature. Haight, the man unafraid!

Being but 38 years of age, this astute young man is blessed with mature judgment and an athletic body that responds well to arduous tasks that require both brain and brawn. As Rev. Robert P. Shuler, noted radio minister, has often said, "—truly the man of the hour."

Having won the Commonwealth and Progressive nominations in the primary election and finishing high in the Republican tallies, Haight soon discovered that his final drive must be conducted along the lines of direct appeal to the voters, an appeal based on common sense and the practical application of business judgment to matters of government.

Those promoting the candidacy of the Republican, Frank Merriam, have been very busy, for the past several weeks, telling voters that, "a vote for Haight is a vote for Sinclair." This is far from the truth as figures from San Diego County prove. Over 65 per cent of those who have pledged their support at the Border City headquarters are registered Democrats while but 31 per cent are Republican affiliates. A meager four per cent make up the minority groups.

The new Haight slogan is, "A VOTE FOR Haight IS A VOTE FOR Haight." The ex-Corporation Commissioner is in the scrap until the finish and intends to meet his opponents fairly and squarely on every vital issue.

While Upton Sinclair has chosen to ignore the Townsend Old Age Pension Plan and Merriam commends it to the study of Washington, Raymond L. Haight points out that he has always been in favor of this meritorious idea.

In his recent radio appeals, Haight has sought to prove to his thousands of listeners that his opponents have been busy fomenting a vicious class war and consequently have obscured the true picture. The Progressive candidate still believes in taking the middle course that does not lean too far to the left nor too far to the reactionary right. In short, the battle cry is still, "give California back to all of the people."

THE BASEBALL CRAZE

The whole country at this time is sensitively baseball conscious. As one rides through the country, every village store, every garage and every home have their individuals or groups who are listening in to the world series of baseball games.

Nothing quite like it is witnessed anywhere else in this world. A whole nation's population is swept into this sphere of baseball interest, and the actors in the drama for the moment are the heroes of the hour.

"Dizzy" and "Daffy" Dean, "Schoolboy" Rowe and Mickey Cochrane are better known than any in this country save President Roosevelt. Their every movement is followed, all their comments about men and things are eagerly read in the sports columns and listened to over the radio.

They are front-page news in every newspaper the country over, and we can think of nothing that could take them out of the spotlight except some great national or international calamity now impossible to conceive.

It is good for humanity to have its enthusiasms, something which leads men to vent their lung power and throw their hats in the air. This would be a dumb and dismal world were it not for our enthusiasms.

The great heroes in this sports drama today may fall from their pedestals tomorrow or next day; all of them will soon be forgotten and lost in the limbo provided for those who arouse the enthusiasm of the crowd for the moment. But they contribute something to the gaiety of nations.

There is much that is phony and drab and reprehensible in the world of sports. But baseball stands out from all the sports as something better.

Its influence, on the whole, is elevating. It takes the thoughts of millions away from staggering problems and sets the mind at rest.

Baseball is the great American game. The country would be very much poorer, much less interesting, should it pass out of our national life.

It is a great satisfaction to know that there are ten days in every year when the minds of the masses of our people are centered on one phase of life and activity that awakens their highest enthusiasms and smoothes the more vexing things of their social existence.

Josh Billings once said that there is one thing about tight boots,—they make us forget all our other troubles. Baseball does that for most of us, and there is no pain in the process.

So, let us be thankful to the man who invented baseball. He is entitled to a monument and to a large place in the happy memories of the American people.

INCREASE IN ARRESTS FOR DRUNK-
ENESS APPALLING

Thursday's Register carried the refutation of one of the most widely-used statements made by repealists before the 18th amendment and the Volstead act were taken off the statute books of the country. There was an increase of 100 per cent in the total arrests for drunkenness for the first nine months of 1934 over the first nine months of 1933.

We all recall that the claim was made that "drinking was infinitely worse under prohibition." Now we have the undeniable figures to face. There is no question but that the tide which flowed against the prohibitory laws has turned and is headed in the other direction.

In addition to the figures for the year of 1934, police department records reveal that an all time monthly record was set for drunk arrests in the month of September, when 79 men and women were booked on this charge. This number is larger than all the arrests for the first six months of 1933, which was prior to the approval of 3.2 per cent beer and to repeal.

The statistical records give us tangible figures with which to conjure in regard to this vital problem; but the things which lie hidden underneath the figures, the intangibles, are the festering sores which are bound to lower the vitality of the community. The increase of drunkenness, almost invariably means less money spent on food for the children; less money on clothing for the family; deprivation of many kinds of necessities and luxuries,—there is no other conclusion to which one can come.

As we think on these things, which face us squarely, we should resolve to throw our strength behind the local option proposition, to be voted on next month, which will give Santa Ana a chance to stop making this horrible record, in case the proposition is carried.

We owe it to the drinker; to his wife and family, which are so heavily penalized; to the community as a whole, which has at present no opportunity to escape the ravages of this traffic, to do our utmost to place upon the statute books of this state the local option law, to give those communities which want to be free from exploitation of this character a right to choose what kind of a community they shall have.

This is one way we can begin to eradicate this shameful record, and eliminate the horrible evils which lie behind it.

Machine Gun Law
Oakland Tribune

It is now against the Federal law for the private individual to possess machine-guns and sawed-off shotguns, weapons which are the favorites of the gangster.

This law, passed by the last Congress, may not stop the criminals from possessing weapons of the kind, but it will aid the law in punishing gangsters who have them in their possession.

Before the Senate committee investigating munitions it was testified that there were concerns who imported machine guns and sold them to all buyers, including robbers, kidnappers and other criminals. In St. Louis within a month it was discovered that gangsters had purchased machine guns in the open market. There was nothing illegal about all this. A man might be suspected of being a bank robber and have a machine gun in his possession but, unless the robbery itself could be proved against him, there was nothing, up until a week ago, that the law could do.

The law which has gone into effect makes it a felony for any individual, except after compliance with certain regulations, to own or possess a machine gun or sawed-off shotgun. Penalties include a fine up to $2000, prison sentence up to five years, or both. Anyone buying, borrowing or renting a machine gun or sawed-off shotgun and certain kinds of other weapons, must be fingerprinted and pay a transfer tax of $200. A pawnbroker taking one of these weapons for security on a loan must pay the transfer tax and to sell them, he must have a license costing $300 a year.

The industry in these death-dealing instruments for which there has been little use outside of gangland has received a stunning if belated blow.

Radio—Voice of the People

Dusky natives of the Gold Coast, awaiting before powerful radios to learn the English language, is a prospect now that Sir Ofori Atta, the Omahene of Akwem, has purchased a seven-tube set for experiment with the advance pupils in his country. Young men who have learned the colloquial expressions that grow up in a land where languages merged hurriedly for business purposes and so became a polyglot tongue will study the best of spoken speech by air.

But it is not only in Africa that speech is becoming more uniform with the advent of radio. Just as the printed word, as set down by Caxton and his press, adopted one style of English and made it the tongue of literature, so speech in Yorkshire, for example, is destined for uniformity.

In the United States, it is well that philologists are taking down the last remnants of colloquial speech in all parts of the country, for soon the New England Yankee, the Southerner and the man from the West, will be using the same inflections in this day of nation-wide broadcasting chains. Radio, in less than half a century, seems destined to become the voice of the people. The problem now is to make that voice the best that English affords.

Dollar Americans Abroad

A 40 per cent fall in the American dollar may have depopulated certain parts of Montparnasse and Montmartre with a corresponding rise in the population of New York, Chicago and Houston, Texas. But the real expatriates, Americans permanently residing abroad, have not been driven home by the revolution in foreign exchange. The State Department reports that there are more than 429,000 Americans living abroad. Last year there were 420,000 tourists, students, and presumably authors who, with their novels of American life on the Riviera, are not included in the count.

One striking change, however, should be noted. Americans in France have fallen off nearly 7,000 in a year, from nearly 20,000 to less than 13,000. In Italy they have gone up 5,000, and are now more than twice the number in France. As between the two countries Italy has always been the cheaper place to live, and it looks as if Americans faced with the necessity of living on a shrunken dollar have been changing over from the French Riviera to the Italian Riviera and from Paris to Florence and Rome.

CAPTURED BRAINS

On learning that Lycurgus
Had bade the Spartans shirk
Year after year
The drab and drear
Employment known as work,
I said: "That scheme's the berries,
I'd make myself a name
Right here and now
If I knew how
To work that kind of game."

I followed every system
That I could figure out,
Yet more and more
I walked the floor
And filled myself with doubt.
That those old Greeks were wondrous
I could not but admit,
And strained my brow
In wondering how
They got away with it.

At last I found the answer:
The lads who misbehaved,
Played fast and loose
And raised the deuce
Were captured and enslaved.
They did the work, and thinking:
They gave the place its start.
One must concede
That that old breed
Of Greeks was pretty smart.

NOT SO GOOD

Rice dyed in different colors can now be supplied to hostesses to match their dinner sets. This may be all right for rice, but we'd hate to eat a potato doused up like that.

Another thing that puzzles us is why the banks are located so far from the places where cops are.

BEYOND REACTION AND REVOLUTION

As I have insisted upon the importance of our unswerving maintenance of the American tradition of private enterprise and political liberty, and our determined resistance to both Fascist and Communist tendencies, readers now and then have written to say, "You were the last person we expected would want to go back to the practices and conditions of the decade just before the depression."

This is a widespread fallacy that must be met, namely, that a belief in the superiority of private enterprise, with personal incentive and initiative, preservation of profit, capitalism and a wide freedom is a tight, hard, reactionary belief that underwrites all the buccaneering of the New Era, turns thumbs down on all reform, and believes in a devil-take-the-hindmost policy.

Loyalty to the American tradition of private enterprise and political liberty does not mean we must go back to principles and practices of that decade.

It does not mean we must give monopoly its head.

It does not mean we must exploit labor.

It does not mean we must deny relief to the needy.

It does not mean we must make no move to help the farmer.

It does not mean we must deny protection to bank depositors.

It does not mean we must let capitalism go its way unreformed.

It does not mean we must fight provisions for social insurance against old age and insecurity.

It does not mean that government must dismantle its regulatory machinery and turn the country over to economic banditry.

It means only that we refuse to follow the false leads of Fascism or Communism, that we determinedly preserve the dignity and personal incentive of the individual, making government the servant instead of the sovereign of our lives.

A HAPPY ENDING

All who have to do with children should believe in the happy ending. All through your relationship with children let that idea run to its logical end, a happy end.

When children are learning a new process, and this means in the home as well as in school, make certain that the child is happy at the end of the lesson. When the baby is learning to use his spoon he will spill the food. His hand will twitch and the spoon turn over. First guide his hand. Now let him try for himself without apparent supervision. Just before he gets so tired that he must fail completely and end in tears, come to his relief with a smile and a word of praise, feed him the last spoonfuls and let his lesson have a happy ending.

Teachers know this but sometimes in their long and difficult days, brush it aside. It would be better to plan the work so that the children had to work hard in the middle of the period, and have an easy bit at the end so that they could finish in a rush of success.

An easy start, a reaching effort, then a grand finish with hearts high and banners flying, is the scheme for a successful lesson.

The music teacher would profit by this scheme. An opening that is familiar and pleasant, then the new or difficult bit, and to close, an easy, happy piece, with the teacher joining in, would help many a tottering musical career to maturity.

But the end of the child's day is what I want to talk about most of all. Children seem tireless to us older folk who watch their antics during the day. But the end of the day finds them weary enough. Sometimes they are so tired that they cannot keep still enough to relax and rest. Fatigue drives them on and on until they crack in a burst of hysterical tears or temper. That puts a bad end to the day and that is something not to be permitted. Children must end the day happily, if it is humanely possible for them to do so.

The end of the day is forecast in its beginning. We prepare for the end all the long day through. Guard the children against piled up fatigue. Try to have them follow their schedule in easy rhythmic fashion, doing the familiar things in the familiar way. Don't let play time run into meal time.
